GEN. WADE, our Minister to Brazil, declines the conduct of Mr. WASHBURNE in leaving Paraguay. Any other course, he says, would have cost him his life. Let it be said that the rumor forces professional friendship on the United States, but denounces the conduct of our Minister as unjustified. There is reason to believe that he was one of our Western Generals, Mr. WADE, backed as a sufficient naval force, has made suitable demands of LOPEZ, and will enforce them if not complied with.

THE Tribune objects to the repeal of the Tenure of Office Act, because it believes it is right in principle, and that "the tenure of office should be measured by the efficiency of the officer." It evidence is that the laws do not block. The act was designed to secure a bad President best on the worst electing he could invent. Some part of it may be worth preserving. If so, let as much of it stand. If anybody is afraid that GRANT will prove another JOHNSON, it would be but frank to say so, and perhaps the best way to say so would be to let the act stand as it is.

SECRETARY MCCULLOCH, if he is not a corrupt officer, is certainly having an amount of odium unfairly heaped on his head that few public functionaries have ever been compelled to bear. It is not too much to say that very many believe that he is not entirely pure in his high office, or late the reverse has become the opposition, and it is growing, while the Secretary either cannot or does not care to offer a single word in his own defense. The Herald's Washington correspondent adds the following to many statements gratuitously made by various writers.

"One of the favorite operations of the Treasury is the secret manipulation of bonds—purchasing, disposing, &c. Secretary McCulloch has the largest amount of discretionary power in this respect ever conferred upon any Secretary of the Treasury. He has been in the habit of purchasing bonds at the lowest rates, and selling them at the highest rates, and of course he has made a large profit on the transactions. Some of the bonds he has purchased at 90 he has sold at 110, and some he has purchased at 110 he has sold at 120. Of course he has made a large profit on the transactions, and it is generally supposed that he has made a million dollars or more in this way. Whether he has or not, he has made a large profit, and the public are entitled to know what it is. Let the Secretary make a statement of his transactions in bonds, and the public will be satisfied."

A GOOD many leading papers of the country are giving General GRANT a great deal of advice. By the time he is inaugurated he will know more good advice than any man in existence. The function of what they have to say to him is, that he must drive all the scoundrels out of office, and fill their places with honest men. They tell him that this will be his first duty, and that it is for this he was elected President. It is not to be inferred that in this he will be held to a rigid accountability. It is to be doubted if General GRANT stands in need of these informations as to his duty, but these papers having volunteered them it is to be hoped that they will not be the first to denounce him for choosing the agents and the way for doing the work thoroughly. The chances are that some of them will. But General GRANT can rely on the country standing by him to the last in subordinating every other consideration to his "first duty."

THE reader has been informed that SAMUEL M. CLEMENS has ceased to be Superintendent of the Printing Bureau of the Treasury Department. Secretary MCCULLOCH was literally compelled to dismiss him, having exhausted every means to retain him in a position of the greatest responsibility after he had come to be suspected of grave offenses. The Secretary, some time ago, promised the Special Committee, of which Senator EDMUNDS is Chairman, that CLEMENS should go, and often, a few days ago, the Senator arrived in Washington to commence an investigation into CLEMENS's Bureau, and found him still in office, the Secretary had no alternative but to allow him his dismissal. This he did reluctantly. It is said he believed the suspicions were groundless or wished to confirm them by exposure. The investigation has been commenced by Senator EDMUNDS, who will prosecute it until the other members of the committee arrive. To this the Washington correspondent of the Herald adds the following:

"The committee intend to investigate the facts in relation to the dismissal of CLEMENS, and the reasons assigned by Secretary MCCULLOCH for the same. It is said that CLEMENS has in his possession documents which will implicate some of the officials of the Treasury Department in corrupt practices, and that CLEMENS was dismissed because he refused to give up these documents. It is also said that CLEMENS has documents in his possession which will implicate Secretary MCCULLOCH

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Saturday Evening, November 21, 1868.

The week closes in a somewhat more comfortable condition of affairs in the financial world than it opened. Money plenty the last three days, and it is thought that for all legitimate purposes in the demands of trade, there is no lack of sufficient means. It is true there is an put interest on speculation in stocks, but the more expensive ingredient in the one large cause which may now be resting in government bonds or some other solid security. There is really a stagnant condition of things generally, indeed to a gratifying extent, for it is a sign of a healthy reaction from the excitement of speculation, and a return to more reasonable and fair business methods. It is gratifying to see that we have been going on for some time past, slow but healthy. It is hoped the process may be patiently endured, and we shall soon touch the point of solid ground.

Speculation continues to show steady upward tendency. Some doubt has been felt among leaders whether the market after the recent halt of the struggle, would assume the appearance of a downward movement, and the steady advance coming in as soon after the easing of money, appear to have determined, in the view of many, that the tendency is to go upward, and that the effect of the recent rise in the Government credit, followed by the unnatural condition of the money market, will now have its force, promoting higher prices. Within the last two weeks a good amount of bonds have been sold in Europe, and the are commencing very soon.

Wall street has assumed its normal condition, and the fluctuations in the leading stocks have been very moderate as compared with the excesses of the past month. The commission houses have lost their force, and all parties are disposed now to examine their influence stocks, which have been somewhat changed by the course of the market. The street has passed through the severe ordeal of the recent decline, and the heaviest losses in Erie for the time as to the richest class of holders. Erie, for the time at least, has ceased to be the feature of the street. The great corporation interest in Pittsburgh which has monopolized public attention has been transferred to the Courts; and the poor stockholders who have been ground between the upper and the nether millstones will have the satisfaction of reading how the thing was done in the affidavits and counter affidavits of the witnesses. The speculative attempts to realize the remainder of the fall after the second fall seems to confidence in all corporation officials will be only temporary, and operators will be satisfied with smaller profits and quicker returns.

In the miscellaneous securities, Pacific Mail was the noticeable feature. It is understood that the new Board has been organized harmoniously, and, with the withdrawal of all opposition, confidence is expressed that the former days of prosperity will return, and that the large increase of business at the old commencing rates will justify the expectation of a speedy resumption of its regular dividends.

The following table, made up from the gratuity received at J. S. Kennedy's stock rooms, Apollo building, No. 8 Fourth avenue, shows the gross of Railway stocks, Gold, etc., at the various sessions of the New York Boards during the day:

The New York Tribune observes that the recent issues of the Erie stock have produced great indignation in the street, and that no one dare the fomentors of confidence in all the railway property dealt in at the Stock Exchange. The rumors are that a concerted movement is being made to suspend the dividends and effect a settlement of the affairs of the Company, and an official register of the number of shares of stock now in existence, and failing to receive this, an application will be made to the Court to compel the officers to furnish them, until this reasonable request is complied with.

Those owners of Erie have shaken the confidence of all holders of railroad property, and the Board of Directors ought to at once take this action, which would effectually and instantly remove the present distress. The Directors, it is now said, sold all the stock on the street, and if brokers' stop operating for the rise the result would remain with the parties who issued the stock, and there would be no material interest for it until the public men had settled the information as to his affairs. No stock should be sold at the fourteen dollar suggested in the Erie Company, where an honest result ascertain at once how much was issued and authorized. And any assurance coming short of this should be at once removed from the list. This action, taken by the Boards, would restore at once all future issues, and restore the confidence of holders. We hope to see this action taken by the Directors before the stock sale gets into effect.

The following statement exhibits the business of the Pittsburgh banks for the week ending Saturday, November 21st:

Strength of the Insurgents Increasing Among the Leaders Suffering in the Revolutionary Districts.

HAVANA, November 7.—Many rumors are in circulation in the city in regard to the number and position of the insurgents. The following is considered the most reliable: 1,000 men are in possession of the town of Puerto Principe, but the reports are minimized. It is stated that a disagreement has broken out among the leaders of the insurrection in regard to the Presidency. The commander-in-general and the principal leaders of the movement are said to be dissatisfied.

The report received by the Spanish Government daily increases the number of the insurgents and the Spanish forces in opposing the latter. The Revolutionists number 20,000 men.

A battalion of volunteers peremptorily refused to march against the insurgents. They were disarmed and sent to Fort Seymore and Cabanas.

There is considerable excitement in Sagua and Cienfuegos, and the Spanish Committee, in opinion is that it will be required out of the country of foreigners and Cubans.

The Cuban Republican Committee in New York has received daily reports from Cuba, and the information received is encouraging, even though private letters to be the contrary.

It is reported that great suffering exists in the districts recently declared in possession of the insurgent forces.

A telegram received by the government to-day states that Puerto Principe continues in the possession of the insurgents. The Spanish volunteers commanding Valmaseda still continue in the vicinity of Sancti Spiritus, but not on the contrary, as was the case, are not operating against them.

NEW YORK, November 22.—Captain General Lersundi having received new commissions, and the whole line department of the city, the members of which have been arrested and privileges, have been restored and officials set. They made a very fine appearance. Lersundi, united with the regular troops in and around the city, constitute an army of 15,000 men, capable of being attacked by the insurgents in the interior, but on the contrary, are the ones operating against them.

Saturday she wrote to her father to come and take her home, and that before he would be there for her early in November. On the 1st of October, however, a lady calling herself Mrs. Packard, and claiming to be a resident of Pittsburgh, called at the house where Miss Wilcox was staying, and before she had been there long learned of the desire of the little one to get home. The strange woman professed to know the child's father and several other persons in Columbiana county, and stated that she herself was going there to see some of her friends. The gentleness of the stranger won the child and induced her home, to which the little one readily assented—the most gentle persuasion and the most winning manner of the child assisting. On the 3d of November, when the little girl was missed, Mrs. Packard was found to be in charge of the engineer and astonishment of the people of Jamestown, and the fraud came to light. The child was found safe home, although five days had elapsed since she and the strange lady had left Pittsburgh. The latter appeared at the house of the stranger woman, and his grief on being informed that she had left Pittsburgh was unbounded. His astonishment at not finding her, however, and his own ingenuity employed soon after in searching for her. The police also have the matter in hand, and no crime is being left untoward in the search. Any information communicated to the police or at the Mayor's office will be thankfully received.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Sentences in the Criminal Court—Motion for a New Trial in the O'Neill Riot Case Overruled—Hon. John M. Kirkpatrick Sworn in as Associate Judge of the District Court—Trial Lists for To-Day.

Quarter Sessions Full Bench.

Court met at the usual hour Saturday morning, and the following business was transacted:

SENTENCES.

Milton Cline, convicted of assault and battery upon the person of Miss Ellen McFadden, on the 4th of September, by the Grand Jury, was called up for sentence. Mr. Wall, his counsel, moved for a new trial on the following reasons, viz: the misconduct of a man named Hall, of East Liberty, who came to the Grand Jury room and informed the jury that the prisoner had been convicted of a similar offence, and that the mother of sentence had been laid over for some time, owing to the fact that the prisoner was in jail. Mr. Wall also made the allegation of Mr. Kistler. The Court was disposed to grant a new trial, but after hearing the testimony could not upon the subject, and if errring in the matter at all, would prefer to err upon the side of mercy, and therefore refused a new trial. Motion was overruled. Mr. Wall was sentenced to imprisonment in the county jail and three months in the Western Penitentiary.

Joseph Morris, who plead guilty to the charge of larceny of a watch, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail. He said he would leave the State before the end of the time, and after the sentence had been pronounced he thanked the Court for its mercy and said he would keep his promise. Judge Sterrett—

Joseph O'Neil, who plead guilty to the charge of assault and battery upon John Reiter, was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 and costs.

The motion for a new trial in the O'Neil riot case was overruled. Two of the prisoners, Fryer and Anson, were called up for sentence. Mr. Pollock, counsel for Anson, said that the night before the riot he had been drinking, and in that state, and was unable to appear in Court when the case was tried. There was a special jury in this case, and it could not be said that he was the worse for the disturbance simply because he was drunk. In the case of Fryer it was also shown that there were circumstances which would go to mitigate his sentence. The defendant's wife testified to the strange circumstance of twenty-four hours' absence of her husband, and pay a fine of one dollar each.

In the case of Wm. May and Edward Mahl, convicted of horse stealing, sentence was postponed until Saturday next, in order that witnesses might be called to show that the horses had really in some facts which would tend to mitigate the sentence.

Disorderly on a Street Car.

About noon yesterday a man, considerably under the influence of liquor, commenced acting in a very disorderly manner in car No. 40, on the Baltown street line of the Manchester Passenger Railway, as the car was going along Locust street, Allegheny, and used the most obscene and profane language. The conductor, Mr. William Allen, requested him to be quiet or he would have to leave the car. This only had the effect of making the man more violent in his language, when the conductor caught hold of him to put him off. A couple of the disorderly fellow resisted and attempted an assault on the conductor, when one of the male passengers assisted the latter and they succeeded in putting both fellows off the car, in doing so one of the windows on the platform of the car was broken. Fortunately for the two disorderly passengers there were no police about at the time, or they would have been taken into custody.

The interior of the house has been repainted and thoroughly renovated, and an excellent bill of fare is presented by M. Police Intelligence.

[Before Mayor Blackmore.]
MONDAY MORNING COURT.

Deputy Mayor Butler presided at the Court this morning, and disposed of the usual dockets of twenty-seven cases.

COMPETITIVE NAKED LIFE.

The troublesome of this spring, "competition makes life," is not confined to the business men in the case to be found below. Three men named respectively Charles Herrold, Leonard Goose and John Grubbs, are engaged in manufacturing trousers on Fourth avenue. The first named and the latter are partners. Their establishments are both early, other, and competition appears to be very close between them. Each one claims that his trousers are the best made. He says that Goose and Grubbs are doing a thriving business, and that he is not. He says that Goose and Grubbs have more windows in their shop than he has, and did various other acts calculated to injure his business. Goose and Grubbs deny the charges. He appealed to the defendants to "leave him alone in the glory," but they would not do so. He then made an assault on the latter, when one of the male passengers assisted the latter and they succeeded in putting both fellows off the car, in doing so one of the windows on the platform of the car was broken. Fortunately for the two disorderly passengers there were no police about at the time, or they would have been taken into custody.
